Miss Annie Hillegass

Tuesday evening, June 15, the death angel twined about the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Diehl of Kegg and removed from this earthly chain one more beloved link which was Miss Annie Hillegass, one who was well known and highly respected. Her parents preceded her to the unknown world many years ago, and being left homeless she lived with her brother William near Kegg until about seven years ago when she bought a beautiful home at New Buena Vista where she resided about four years. She was compelled to give up living alone on account of ill health, making her home with her only sister, Mrs. Samuel Diehl. She was aged 59 years, 11 months and 27 days. One sister, Mrs. Diehl, and three brothers: Peter J. of Tull's Hill, George A. and William F. of Kegg, survive.

The funeral service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. C. Gumbert, of Schellsburg in St. John's Reformed Church at New Buena Vista, Thursday morning, June 17. Six nephews: William, Daniel and Henry Diehl, and Harry, Guy and Norman Hillegass acted as pallbearers.

A Real Chautauqua

Miss Florence Kiser of Bedford and her cousin, Miss Helen Margaret Hall, of Washington, Pa., have gone to Chautauqua, N. Y., a summer resort on Lake Chautauqua. They will attend the Chautauqua assemblies. The Chautauqua system originated with an assembly held at Chautauqua in 1874, and in 1878 a literary and scientific circle was organized by John H. Vincent. The object of the original and early Chautauquas was education, culture and enlightenment through home studies and summer assemblies. Yodlers, cheap actors and hot-air jaw-smiths could not get on the early Chautauqua platforms. The traveling Chautauquas have degenerated into a money-making scheme, disguised with a little "uplift" veneer. If you want to see the real thing go to Chautauqua, New York, U. S. A. I've been there.—Phoebe Peters.

FIRST "WATER WAGON" TOUR

Dr. Howard H. Russell and His Merry Singers, the "Rail Splitter" Quartet, Will Visit Bedford.

A unique feature of the temperance war is the transcontinental crusade now under way. The "Water Wagon" Tour over the Lincoln Highway, which was begun at New York on July 4th, will continue from ocean to ocean, ending in San Francisco on September 5. Dr. Howard H. Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon League and Lincoln-Lee Legion, will be the speaker. He will be accompanied by his specialists in song, the "Rail Splitter" Quartette, college men from Ohio Wesleyan University.

To provide comfort in travel and insure the prompt keeping of appointments, two high-powered automobiles have been chosen to transport the "Water Wagon" party and their baggage. An experienced chauffeur has charge of each machine. More than one hundred "Round Ups" will be held on the way. The subject of Doctor Russell's address will be "What Would Lincoln Do?" The quartet will sing from a fine repertoire of patriotic concert selections, including Abraham Lincoln's favorite song and selections of war songs and other melodies of Lincoln's time, often heard and much loved by Lincoln.

To these "Round Up" rallies, young people, women, men—everybody is invited. With eloquence and song, Secretary Russell and his "Rail Splitters" will agitate and advocate sobriety for the individual and prohibition for the Nation. A special campaign will be started to enroll a million new abstainers upon the Lincoln pledge in the counties on the Lincoln Highway.

The "Round Up" for this locality will be held at Bedford in the Assembly Hall of the High School Building, on Tuesday evening, July 13th, at 8 o'clock.

Yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock a large touring car driven by H. P. Heck of the Page Motor Car Company, Pittsburgh, and containing three other passengers collided with a telegraph pole on the bank this side of the Wolfburg bridge. The motorists were going westward and on top of the bank they met a buggy which kept the inside of the road and in their attempt to pass on the outside of the curve the car slid and struck the pole with such force that it was smashed completely and the occupants were thrown out but only one received much injury, that was a Mrs. Harper. The unfortunate lady received a fractured skull, broken arm and nose and large lacerations about the face. The patient was brought to Dr. Walter F. UNION SERVICE A SUCCESS

Large Gathering on the Public Square—Rev. Eyer Delivered a Stirring Address.

That the plan of the Bedford Churches for outdoor union twilight services appeals to the people of our town was evidenced by the large assemblage present for the first of these services last Sunday evening. At an early hour persons were seen wending their way toward the square. By 7 o'clock the seats were all filled and many who came later stood in the rear. A number of automobiles were also lined up on West Penn Street within hearing distance of the speaker.

A pulpit stand decorated with the national colors had been fixed on the steps in front of the Lutheran Church. There were also some beautiful floral decorations. Rev. H. E. Wisand of the Lutheran Church presided at the service. A spirited song service with Prof. J. Dale Diehl as leader was followed by the reading of the Word by Rev. Bishara of the Presbyterian Church and prayer by Rev. G. W. Faus of the Methodist Church.

Rev. J. A. Eyer of St. John's Reformed Church announced as his text Prov. 14: 34, "Righteousness exalteth a nation but sin is a reproach unto any people." These words he made the basis for a strong and timely discourse on "The New Patriotism." There can be no true patriotism, he declares, except that which is founded upon the principles of righteousness and social justice. The new patriotism calls not so much for militant courage as moral courage; not so much for men to die for their country as for men to live for their country. As Americans we have learned to hate war and to love peace. We rejoice in our President's stand for peace so long as it can be honorably maintained without compromise with right or righteousness. The present need of our country is for men with courage to stand for principle rather than party, and willing to go down to political graves rather than compromise with wrong.

Throughout his entire discourse Rev. Eyer had the closest attention of his hearers. The attendance and interest of this first opening outdoor service was most gratifying and bespeaks better things for the services yet to come. Upon next Sunday evening Rev. G. W. Faus of the Methodist Church will be the speaker. The service will be held at the same place, and the same hour, from 7 to 8 o'clock.

An Illustrated Lecture

The people of Bedford and community have an unusual treat in store for them, in the shape of a series of highly entertaining and instructive illustrated lectures, entitled, "A Trip to the Holy Land and Back." Each lecture will be accompanied by between seventy and eighty stereopticon views, illustrating the daily life of the people of the different countries, their religions, places of worship, the physical features of the countries, historic buildings, etc. Such a trip as contemplated in these lectures, through lands teeming with natural and historic interest to the traveler, and to everyone who wishes to know something of countries and peoples other than his own, and culminating with Syria, whose history is the history of the world, if undertaken by an individual or person, would mean an expenditure of probably several thousand dollars, while those who do not care to, or are not able to do so, may have a very good substitute for such a trip, at a very moderate outlay, by attending these lectures.

The lecturer, Rev. K. A. Bishara, Ph. D., pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, is a native of Syria, and is a highly educated gentleman, of pleasing personality and unusual oratorical ability, who is thoroughly acquainted with his subjects, having an intimate personal knowledge of the people of Syria and surrounding countries, and of their customs, from having been born and having lived amongst them, and he will undoubtedly make these lectures intensely interesting and informative.

The lectures will be delivered in the Bedford Presbyterian Church, and the price of the tickets will be twenty-five cents for each lecture, or one dollar and seventy-five cents for the course. The first lecture will be given Thursday evening, July 15, at 8 o'clock, the subject being "Africa," and the others as follows: July 22, "David Livingstone;" July 29, "Persia;" August 5, "Syria;" August 12, "India;" August 19, "China;" August 26, "Into All the World." No one should fail to avail him or herself of the opportunity to hear these lectures.

Everett can be rightfully listed with those entitled the "safe and sane." The day was very quietly spent and the streets were unusually quiet.

The town took on the appearance of "everybody is staying at home today." Two lawn festivals, one by the Baptist congregation, in front of their church, and the other by the Christian denomination, "over in Earlston," were well attended in the evening.

The Earlston Band came over and took their position on the veranda of the J. E. Ford Building and most delightfully did they entertain the people of the town who lined both sides of the street, the driveway being taken up by automobiles and other vehicles. The boys have added a new piece to their number—that of a bass horn—which instrument cost $100. A collection was taken and presented to the band boys in appreciation of their music rendered.

Good Treatment For Oily Scalps

Men and women whose hair and scalp are excessively oily suffer more in the warmer months than at any other time. The summer's dust and dirt mingle with dandruff, clinging to the oily hair and scalp, clog the scalp pores, stifle the hair roots and make proper cleansing almost impossible.

Parisian Sage is an ideal treatment for this trouble. Wash the hair not oftener than once a week, but use Parisian Sage twice daily, pouring a little into the parted hair and rubbing briskly right into the scalp with the finger tips. It drives out dandruff, dissolves the excess oil and stimulates the scalp into healthy normal action. Sold by F. W. Jordan, Jr., and leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

MEAT IN HOT WEATHER

A Few Simple Precautions for the Housewife Who Does Not Want Her Supplies to Spoil.

A few simple precautions will aid the housewife in keeping meat untainted in hot weather. It is, of course, common knowledge that the higher the temperature, the quicker meat will spoil, but the family's supplies are not absolutely at the mercy of the thermometer. Ice and cleanliness are two great weapons of defense.

For many families a refrigerator is obviously out of the question, but it is perhaps better to have no refrigerator at all than a neglected one. Merely to wash it out occasionally does little good; it should be thoroughly scalded at frequent intervals, in particular the drain. This, if overlooked, is apt to harbor fungous growths, which may spread to the food. On one occasion a man applied to the department because he had found that a joint of beef placed in his refrigerator had turned a peculiar bright red. Upon examination it was ascertained that the meat was covered with a peculiar fungous growth due entirely to the condition of the refrigerator. Growths of this kind do not always advertise themselves so prominently and there may be much evil in an ice box that the eye can not detect.

If the refrigerator drain is not thoroughly cleaned, moreover, it is likely to become choked, the water is not carried off quickly enough and little pools are left standing in the interior. Dampness is one of the conditions most favorable to bacterial growth. An ice box in this state will not protect food long. It is, in fact, a wise precaution to wipe the interior of a refrigerator every day with a dry cloth.

The temperature of the average refrigerator is higher than most persons suppose, and in those households where a regular supply of ice is not obtainable a cool cellar, a spring house, or the depths of a well may serve somewhat the same purpose. On farms where there is an ice house the meat may be placed in some form of closed retainer and buried in the ice. In any event, the meat must be carefully screened from flies. The danger from infection from these pests has been pointed out many times, but familiarity breeds contempt and they still persist. The fly not only does the meat itself no good, but it may readily deposit upon it some infection, which is carried in turn by the meat into the human system. Some flies will deposit their eggs on the meat and these in a short time will become maggots, and the meat is "flyblown."

Much sickness that is popularly ascribed to ptomaine poisoning or to bad food in general is really caused in some such way as this, the food, in itself perfectly wholesome, acting merely as a mechanical carrier for the "germs" which cause the trouble. Some of these sorts come from the human intestine, and their presence is a sure indication that filth is present, even if the amount is too small to be seen. Filth of this kind may be carried by dust, but it more often comes from soiled hands. One might wish that every kitchen could have the sign found in some well-managed food factories—"When you leave the room for any purpose, wash your hands before you return to work."

"Germs" which grow in foods and cause illness grow very rapidly, particularly if the food is a little warm, and are not destroyed unless the food is well cooked before serving. Simply "warming up" is not enough, as was found in a case of illness recently reported after eating some warmed-up creamed vegetable. Certain kinds of food—creamed chicken, or custard, or warm vegetables, for example—are excellent culture mediums for bacteria which may have been introduced into them by accident. For this reason it is a safe rule to have as short a time as possible intervene between the preparation of food and its consumption. Broth is another excellent medium and in consequence should be drained off if it is intended to keep the meat for any length of time before serving. If the broth is used also it should be boiled thoroughly first. All food, cooked or uncooked, should be kept in a clean, cool place in order to reduce the danger of infection to a minimum.

When meat must for any reason be kept for unusually long periods of time or when the conditions are unusually unfavorable scalding may be resorted to advantageously. Dropping the meat into boiling water for a few minutes will not seriously affect its flavor when it ultimately appears upon the table, and it will put it in a much better condition for keeping. It is important, however, that it be dipped in a large body of boiling water. If only a small amount of water is used, the introduction of the meat will lower the temperature to such an extent that the whole process becomes worthless. With such meats as veal or pork, which are always—ought to be—thoroughly done, the precaution can be carried further and the joints partially cooked before being stored away. Care should be taken, however, to see that the re-cooking is thoroughly done.

Hot weather also calls for additional precautions on the part of the housewife in regard to canned products. Once these have been opened and exposed to the air they spoil as quickly, if not more quickly, than fresh food. The contents of a can should therefore be disposed of without delay. In no event should they be left in the can after it has been opened, but should be used at once unless the housekeeper wishes to "air" the canned material, which some believe is desirable. If this is done, the can contents should be transferred to a clean earthen or glass dish and put away for an hour or two in a cool place where dust will not reach it.

The Fable of the Miser and His Nephew

Once upon a time in a bustling semi-metropolis there lived an old geezer whose ability to see money at long range was heralded for miles around. Once he had caught sight of a dollar he never rested until he had annexed it unto himself, and when thus annexed, it was as easy to separate the two as it would have been to dig the Panama Canal with a barn shovel. This old geezer nearly always walked on the soles of his shoes to keep the heels from running over, and he wore celluloid collars to save laundry bills. He also wore all the whiskers he could grow to stave off barber bills and to make neckties unnecessary.

One day, however, while he was on his way to foreclose a mortgage on the home of a blind woman with six small children, he was taken ill. They hauled him into a hospital because he was too ill to protest, and after carefully diagnosing the case the physicians said that by keeping him perfectly quiet he might live a week. But they were mistaken. One of the nurses had told him what it was costing to stay in the hospital and he died to save further expenses. That night his debtors held a jubilee convention and his money was bequeathed to a nephew whom the old geezer had never seen.

Two months later, when the estate was settled, the nephew exchanged a big chunk of the old geezer's kale for a limousine and he and a certain chorus girl would ride out to the cemetery, eat peanuts while sitting upon the old man's grave and meditate upon how wearisome life is.

NOT ENOUGH CHILDREN

ever receive the proper balance of food to sufficiently nourish both body and brain during the growing period when nature's demands are greater than in mature life. This is shown in so many pale faces, lean bodies, frequent colds, and lack of ambition.

For all such children we say with unmistakable earnestness: They need Scott's Emulsion, and need it now. It possesses in concentrated form the very food elements to enrich their blood. It changes weakness to strength; it makes them sturdy and strong. No alcohol. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

The Ten Commandments of Picture Framing and Hanging

Thou shalt not use ornate or elaborate frames. The simpler forms are always the better art.

Thou shalt avoid the use of bright gilt frames. Dull gold, bronze and black are much more restful.

Thou shalt not frame water colors or colored prints with matts, but put the frame squarely against the picture.

Thou shalt not frame trivial pictures at all. They have no lasting value.

Thou shalt not use cords or chains for hanging thy pictures. Set them on the plate rail, if it is not too high, or hang them flat against the wall with a single nail.

Thou shalt not hang thy pictures above or below the level of the eye.

Thou shalt not over-crowd thy walls with pictures, better too few than too many.

Thou shalt not hang glass covered pictures where the light will strike them and reduce them to dazzling white blurs.

Thou shalt not select or hang any pictures that will not bear a seven-days-in-the-week association.

Thou shalt not hang fruit or game pictures in any part of the house except the dining room.

THOSE PICKLEWEIGHTS

Famous Family of Pacificists to Enlarge Its Sphere of Operations. Who has not chuckled over the unending complications in the household of the Pickleweights—Enoch, the plaintive; Maria, the masterful; Ichabod, the Injun strategist; Dill, the rotund and voracious, and Heler Battleaxe, gallant defender of her brother's innocence and helplessness?

For years the tribulations of this interesting family have delighted readers of the Philadelphia North American, and the characters created by Cartoonist Bradford have become familiar to thousands. In fact, the Pickleweights have grown to be such an institution that more space and special treatment are required to chronicle their explosive history.

Next Sunday, July 11, therefore, they make their appearance in the Sunday North American, occupying a full page, in colors. Henceforth, it is understood, they are to be known to fame as "The Peaceful Pickleweights." Bradford announces that they have moved to the country, in the hope that tranquil scenes, far removed from the turmoil of the city, will allay the hostilities that have divided them. The first page in the series shows them installed in their new home. Unfortunately the occasion is marred by some deplorable accidents; but it is the universal hope that the family has entered upon a career of peace.

This is only one feature of The North American's new comic section, which, it is declared, will be the best in the country. With the Pickleweights will appear each Sunday the original Katzenjammer Kids, whose antics have convulsed uncounted readers; "Just Boys," a page of homely humor that will delight every one who has known childhood, and a fourth page, on the most indulgent of young parents and "Their Only Child."

This new comic section will add immensely to the fascination of the Sunday North American, and should prove a source of never-ending delight to all who enjoy rollicking fun. Order from your newsdealer today.

To Serve Tea and Sandwiches

An easy way of serving a cup of tea is to place the cup on a matching plate and to put a folded tea napkin, a spoon and a fork on the plate. Then pass whatever sandwiches or cakes you may desire to serve with the tea. They can be accomplished on the plate and daintily and easily eaten.

If elaborate cakes or sandwiches are served with tea and no plate is provided it is difficult to manage them balanced on the saucer of the cup. If a separate plate is held under the cup and saucer, it is practically useless, for the saucer so nearly fills it that the margin at the edge is not wide enough to accommodate the cakes.

Of course when a simple wafer or easily eaten sandwich is to be passed with the tea, the saucer of the teacup is sufficiently commodious to accommodate it.—Ex.

LILY'S LETTER

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS.

The first week of Lily's vacation had been most disappointing. She had not met a single attractive man during her seven days at Sea Cliff, and so dull did it seem that she was thinking seriously of returning to the city. At home, she at least had the society of the boarders who shared her mother's comfortable hospitality.

However, on the eighth day of her vacation Lily saw a young man the very sight of whom sent a wave of color into her cheeks. Lily was young.

"It is positively wicked to be so good looking," she told herself, as she watched the young man dive from the springboard at the end of the pier. "Now, why can't a man like that elect to stop at the same hotel I do—there would be a ghost of a chance of becoming acquainted then." Lily smiled ruefully. "No such luck for me," she added.

She never admitted, even to herself, that she had deliberately left the letter that she had received from her mother the next morning. However, Lily did drop the letter and walked swiftly on without daring to look back to ascertain just who had picked it up.

Fortunately it was the wickedly handsome young man who saw the letter fall, and it was he who picked it up. When he had put both name and address in his note book for further reference, Jack Bassington enclosed the letter in another envelope and sent it to Lily Brayton at the Sea Cliff address.

If the girl was disappointed that her letter was returned by mail rather than by male she did not show it.

In the meantime Jack Bassington's vacation had come to an end and he had returned to the city.

Being without a family and home in the city itself he was free to live where his fancy and pocketbook dictated. He went directly from the station to the address he had seen in the corner of the envelope addressed to Lily Brayton.

When he caught sight of the brownstone front house that bore the number he had put carefully down in his notebook Bassington whistled softly and delightedly.

Just under the number a small brass plate informed passers-by that there were vacant apartments within. The maid who answered his ring led him into the little office and there he made arrangements to occupy the daintily furnished room on the third floor.

When Lily returned two days later Mrs. Brayton sighed. Her daughter's eyes were shadowed and her smile seemed less frequent than of yore. Mr. Bassington was introduced to her. The girl stammered a greeting and sat swiftly down to cover her embarrassment.

Bassington was even more nervous inwardly, but outwardly he was coolly itself.

It was not until after dinner that Bassington and Lily found themselves separated slightly from the group.

"I had watched you every day," he said softly, "and wanted to know you more than anything in the world. I asked everyone I knew in Sea Cliff if they were acquainted with a wonder girl, whose hair was like spun gold and her eyes like sapphires, but no one could help me out. Convention is a dreadful bore—at times, isn't it?" he questioned, and waited for Lily's answer.

"You seem to have managed—even conventionally," she laughed.

"I wouldn't have," Bassington said, thoughtfully, "if you hadn't dropped that letter. I kind of hoped that you—"

"I am a perfectly conventional person," Lily informed him, with a subtle glance from beneath her lashes. (Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Ain't neither one," Sam replied. "I see just an ordinary ossifer."

"And don't you have to give orders?" he was asked. "N-n-no, sir," stammered Sam, "an it's a g-g-good thing. If I h-had mah company m-m-marchin' toward a wall, they might g-g-go clean through it b-b-befo' I could s-s-say h-h-halt."—Louisville Times.

J. P. MORGAN OF NEW YORK

ATTACKED BY A FANATIC

On last Saturday, Frank Holt, a fanatic and an instructor of the German language in a Texas University, since 1906, tried to take the life of J. P. Morgan in New York. Holt secured entrance to the Morgan home on the pretext that he was a friend of the Morgans. He had two revolvers concealed and when he was admitted into the hall of the home he drew these revolvers from their concealment and proceeded to hunt Mr. Morgan. He found him on the second story of the home.

Without any questions he opened fire and succeeded in lodging two bullets in Mr. Morgan's body, one in the thigh, and the other in the abdomen. At this time he was overpowered by members of the family and attendants, captured and removed to jail.

In his examination for committal for trial, Holt stated that he had intended to shut Mrs. Morgan and the children up in a room and hold them there until Mr. Morgan could go out and see his friends to try to stop the selling of arms and ammunition to the allies, which helped them against Germany. This seems a visionary reason but the man is no doubt wrought up over the German cause that he has become insane. He hails from Germany, coming here about 35 years ago.

Holt, this same man, is accused of placing a bomb under a section of a government building at Washington, D. C. The detectives have found evidences of explosives around the apartments used by Holt in Washington like the ones used in the explosion.

Holt is also thought to be the man, known in Harvard University circles as Erich Muentner, who was accused in 1906 of poisoning his wife, eluding the officers and disappearing, unknown since. His photographs in press today resemble the man who disappeared from Harvard nine years ago.

Mr. Morgan, the victim of the enraged man, is not considered fatally wounded. His condition is very encouraging, temperature and pulse normal.

Holt is married. His wife lives in Dallas, Tex., and is the daughter of a Methodist, South, minister.

Holt committed suicide in his cell Tuesday night by climbing to the top of the cell door and throwing himself headforemost to the concrete floor.

First Dose Ends Indigestion, Heartburn, or Gas on Stomach

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from indigestion, dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking Tonoline Tabs.

People with weak stomachs should take Tonoline Tablets occasionally, and there will be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, sour risings, gas on stomach, or belching of undigested food, headaches, dizziness, or sick stomach; and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking Tonoline Tablets.

Go to your druggist and get a $1 box of Tonoline Tablets and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. Tonoline Tabs freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

Tonoline Tablets cost $1.00 for a 50 days' treatment. At druggists or mailed by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.—Adv. 18 June 41

"There Is a House With a Bathroom"

was an expression at one time calculated to arouse interest, but now, conditions are entirely different. To build a house without a bathroom merely raises a question as to the good judgment of the builder. People know that he has either not considered or else misjudged the importance that an up-to-date bathroom has in increasing the value of the house, both as to renting and selling value.

What man would build a house for his own use and not put in a bathroom?

Then the house equipped with modern fixtures will surely attract the best class of tenants or find the readiest sale.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Communication From Our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., July 6.—The man who shot J. P. Morgan Saturday morning having acknowledged that it was he who set the bomb in the Senate reception room of the United States Capitol, much of the mystery of the crime is cleared. Apparently there is little reason to believe that this wanton outrage by this man Holt, who is believed to have been a Cornell professor, was other than the work of a fanatic who has brooded over the European war until his mind had become disordered and he had conceived a plan to arouse a national protest against American contribution to the war supplies to Germany's enemies.

The would-be slayer of Mr. Morgan stopped in Washington last Friday and planned the outrage at the Senate reception room in a rented room only a few doors away from the capitol, where he made the bomb in the course of two hours. The bomb consisted of a bored hole in one of three joined sticks of dynamite, the placing of match heads therein and a bottle of sulphuric acid. When Holt reached the Senate wing he tipped the bottle of sulphuric acid and the fluid began eating its way through the cork to the match heads and dynamite. Later he strolled to the barber shop in the Union Station, two blocks away, where he got a shave and hair cut. After returning to his room he took the train for New York.

A curious incident is the fact that the Chief of Washington Police, Maj. Raymond W. Pullman, who was on his way to New York as the guest of Police Commissioner Woods of the latter city, rode on the same train from Washington with Holt Friday night. The police chief occupied lower seven in car twenty-seven, and Holt occupied lower seven in car twenty-six on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Despite the fact that every entrance and exit of the Capitol has been either securely closed and locked or else under guard by members of the Capitol police force since the explosion in the Senate public reception room, a man who had no business in the building was discovered in the crypt under the dome two days later. The stranger was apprehended after making a desperate struggle to get away. When questioned he said he lived in Washington and was 65 years old. Pension papers and some personal letters found in his pockets indicated that he was a veteran of the Civil War. The aged man said he was in the Capitol building to sit with the United States Supreme Court in its deliberations to bring about a settlement of the great European war.

It is learned that Vice President Marshall received more than a dozen threatening letters while he was in Washington. Some of them were signed, but most were anonymous; all of which were thrown into the waste paper basket.

Administration officials regard as of vital consequence a conference of influential officials of the Villa party in Mexico, which is being held here, as on the result of the conference the ultimate action of the President with reference to Mexico may be based. Reassuring reports on conditions in Mexico City taken to Vera Cruz by refugees who left that capital recently have reached the State Department by cable.

The United States government is determined that Huerta, the former Mexican dictator, shall not re-enter Mexico from American territory. Chief Justice White, of the United States Supreme Court, has declined to pay any attention to the telegram sent him by General Huerta asking the interference of the court in his case. The clerk of the court, however, took the telegram, which was in Spanish, to the State Department for translation.

A preliminary exchange of views is now proceeding informally between the United States and Germany regarding the nature of the German reply to the American note respecting submarine warfare and Lusitania incident. This is responsible for the delay in the delivery of the German reply, which is regarded by some as a "petit" sign that the efforts of the diplomats on both sides will result in a note which would be acceptable both to Germany and the United States. There is little tension now over the loss of American lives on the Armenian, it having become known that she had sought to evade capture. The share of the United States in feeding the world, a task vastly increased by the European war, was disclosed in statistics published by the Department of Commerce. In the nation's $1,000,000,000 foreign trade balance, were exports of foodstuffs valued at $724,000,000, in the eleven months ending June 1. The figures for the same eleven months a year ago were $448,000,000.

The working balance as the first of the new fiscal year, July 1, was $82,025,716.03 in the general fund of the United States Treasury. Under the Federal income tax law a total of $79,828,625 was collected throughout the country. More than one-third of this amount represents receipts from the State of New York alone. Taxpayers—corporations and individuals—of the internal revenue district of Maryland, which includes the District of Columbia, paid $1,820,596.60 of the income taxes for the fiscal year just closed. About $50,000,000 in revenue was raised during the last fiscal year by the Emergency War tax, according to estimates of treasury officials.

In the Postoffice Department the excess of audited expenditures over audited revenues amounted to more than $5,000,000 during the first three-quarters of the fiscal year. This deficit was attributed by the Postmaster General to "the unprecedented conditions which have prevailed and which could not be foreseen."

Independence Day, which had a peculiar significance this year, with nearly all of Europe at war, was appropriately celebrated throughout the City of Washington. President Wilson's plan for "Americanization Day" ceremonies in the exercises, in honor of foreigners who have been admitted to citizenship was carried out to perfection here, as well as in nearly all other big cities of the nation. The Americanization ceremonies here were held at the base of the Washington Monument under the auspices of several patriotic societies. The guests of honor were several hundred residents of this city who have become naturalized citizens in the last twelve months. From standards arranged in a circle around the tall white shaft of the monument floated forty-eight large American flags representing each State in the Union. Upon the stand sat Ambassador Jusserand of France.

Patriotic telegrams received at the White House for President Wilson indicated that the Fourth of July celebrations throughout the country awakened and carried with them a national spirit more widespread and fervent than has existed for many years. These telegrams began to roll into the White House early in the morning and were received throughout the day. There also came felicitations for the President from far-off countries, notably those of Central and South America, including Cuba, Santo Domingo and others.

No definite plans have been made for the President's return to Washington from Cornish, N. H., where he has already been longer than on any previous visit.

Augustine de Yturbe, adopted heir of the late Mexican Emperor Maximilian, and at one time a shining light in Washington society, but of later years almost wholly engaged in studious pursuits, has been married here to Miss Mary Louise Kearney, daughter of the late Brigadier General James Kearney. The ceremony took place in the presence of only a few close friends and relatives. De Yturbe's theological studies and a long residence at the Franciscan monastery, in the suburbs of Washington, lent color to the impression that he would always remain a celibate; and his marriage at the age of fifty-two caused great surprise to his friends.

Church That Is Unique.

The Church of the Holy Ghost of Heidelberg is the only one in the world in which both Protestant and Roman Catholic services are held at the same time. A partition wall in the center separates the two congregations.

Last week we published a communication giving the condition of the roads, state and township, in the southern part of Bedford Township. The article awakened quite an interest in the roads of that section and in other sections as well. It is stated that the State Road from Strominger's Gap to Bedford is in fine shape while that from Strominger's through to "Nuner" Wertz's is neglected. The State should look after this at an early date and see that this part of the road is in repair. No need for procrastination. The mail carrier says it is in a very bad shape and that he expects to enter a complaint. If the citizens of that section would speak to Mr. Wambaugh concerning this part of the road or send a petition to B. F. Dively, Claysburg, Pa., their case would no doubt receive favorable consideration and the road placed in a very satisfactory condition. The road should be very easily repaired and easily kept in repair since there are no great hills to wash.

A SANE FOURTH

The movement for a more safe method to celebrate the Fourth of July, which started a few years ago, reached a climax in its sanity this year. No unnecessary accidents occurred in the county and not very serious ones in the whole State and no fatalities at all were recorded. Last year we had a few accidents in Bedford and a great many in the county. This was due to the careless methods of handling what were considered harmless explosives and this year the Mayor and Council considered it necessary to enforce an ordinance passed some few years ago which prohibited the sale of such goods. The storekeepers were notified in time that the ordinance would be enforced and in consequence no fireworks were ordered. The Fourth of July passed off orderly and nicely and quietly to the pleasure and happiness of all. Likely the solemnity of the day was just as great and many, if not all, reflected on the reasons for celebrating the Fourth in a war-like spirit, wholly unnecessary in our day when a great agitation of war is in all countries today and when we are at present trying our utmost to preserve peace in America and intercede for peace in foreign countries. No tetanus or lockjaw attendant upon Fourth of July casualties was reported at all this year.

Little Folks Entertained

Saturday afternoon, July 3, Miss Helen Kooztz entertained her Sunday School class at her home in Colerain Township. The following persons were present: Aveline Barclay, Pearl Parn, Ruth Shoemaker, Mabel Corbin, Helen Shoemaker, Mildred Weaverling, Lucile Kooztz, Bessie Hartman, Mary Kooztz, Agnes Bohn, Lea Wilson, Gladys Wilson. The girls brought their dolls along and together with their teacher and their teacher's sister Erma, they had a jolly time. The supper bells began to ring all too soon for this happy crowd. Let us have more of these gatherings, they do us all good.

W. C. P.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS

One of the big gatherings of July is the world's convention of Christian Endeavor Societies, booked for Chicago for July 7-12. Four million young people are members of the societies whose delegates gather for this meeting.

A hotel keeper in one city where one of these conventions was held a few years ago was asked in advance what he could do toward accommodating the delegates. He replied off hand that he would take care of them all in his hotel. Afterward when 20,000 to 30,000 delegates began to rain down on the town, he concluded he would need some cot beds if he was going to take the job.

The most remarkable thing about this society is the ease and harmony with which young people from all the protestant denominations work together in one body. Their fathers and mothers may look at the dividing lines between the various sects as chasms, difficult to cross or close up. But to the young people working so well together in one society, they must seem mere imaginary lines, needlessly divisive and duplicating much needless effort. The effect of this inter-denominational organization must be strong toward breaking down futile sectarian lines.

The doings of this society do not occupy much space in the secular newspapers. But it has given a note of enthusiasm to church work that formerly was absent. When the church activities were all managed by ancient deacons and sedate mothers in Israel, the young people sat in the back seats and giggled. In an organization of their own making, they feel more like working and doing things.

It is not to be supposed that the delegates to this gathering make their pilgrimages purely from religious zeal. Desire to see the country may have a share of it. No one who ever attended one of these meetings could doubt the fervent enthusiasm of these young folks for the Christian church.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

First Thing in the Case

the printer always picks is
FIVE BROTHERS.

Not "Pi", Mr. Printer, but P-I-E. It's the real old toothsome pie for you, too, when you get hold of FIVE BROTHERS tobacco. You're never mussed up when you've got FIVE BROTHERS. It's a rich, sweet, healthy smoke or chew; and the printer is glad of a chance to use printer's ink to tell the rest of the world how good it is.

FIVE BROTHERS

Pipe Smoking Tobacco

is a prime favorite with printers and all live, hustling he-boys who know and like a smoke or a chew of real man's tobacco.

And FIVE BROTHERS is always the same—always satisfying. We don't let FIVE BROTHERS go out of the factory until the tobacco has been aged from three to five years, so that all the rich, mellow sweetness of its Southern Kentucky leaf is at its best.

When you're tobacco hungry, you want clean, honest, juicy tobacco with some backbone to it. You never see a FIVE BROTHERS user switch to some other brand. He knows nothing can compare with FIVE BROTHERS for downright satisfaction.

A week's trial of FIVE BROTHERS will prove this to you—will make you a permanent user of FIVE BROTHERS.

HELP WANTED IN BEDFORD

And Furnished by the Help of Bedford People.

Those who suffer with kidney backache, urinary ills or any little kidney or bladder disorder, want kidney help. Who can better advise than some Bedford resident, who has also suffered, but has had relief. Bedford people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's one case and there are many others.

Mrs. W. Trout, 202 Spring St., Bedford, says: "I believe that I had all the symptoms that usually accompany kidney disease. I suffered much from severe pains in my back and sides. I was often very dizzy and spots appeared before my eyes. Finally, my ankles and limbs became swollen. My condition was such as to cause me much worry. My son got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills for me at Heckerman's Drug Store. They did me more good than all the other medicines I ever took. The swelling has gone down, the pains have stopped and I am stronger. You can use my recommendation of Doan's Kidney Pills at any time you want to."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Trout had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. 2 July 21. Advertisement.

Reverie of a Young Farmer On a Wint'ry Night

The evenin' fire is burnin' low,
"And as I sit alone
A-watchin' it my heart goes out
To him without a home.

My wife and babe are in their beds,
But on a night like this
I like to sit and watch the fire
And hear the elm hiss.

It fills my room with ruddy warmth,
Though through the trees outside
The cold wind wails as mournfully
As though someone had died.

Above the patter of the rain
I hear the lowing kine—
The horses stamping in their stalls—
My lazy, grunting swine.

D'ou know here's something creepy
'bout
The sounds that come through night?
But 'long as Shep aint barkin' I Am sure that all is right.

I know my stock's contented, for
Two hours ago I saw That troughs were full and beds were made
Of warm sweet-smelling straw.

I guess they're kind o' talkin' 'bout
Their feed and warmth of fold

And wishin' they could share 'em with
The stock that's in the cold

I ain't no wealthy farmer—
Just a quarter's all I own;
But ever' think about the place
Is glad to call it home.

And as for me; my wife and child
(The roguish little elf)
Are all the treasures that I want—
And all of us have health.

Then what care I far markets? Let Them climb or tumble down
I have my little kingdom here
And Love is made the crown.

I owe no man a single cent;
And food enough have we
To live like kings a year or more—
And some for charity.

The cellar's full of ever' kind
O' fruit that's good to eat.
And all around the place are things
That's buried good and deep.

There's apples, 'taters, cabbage,
squash
And turnips, not a few;
There's pumpkins, onions, carrots and
Some sweet 'taters, too.

The smoke-house is clear full of meat—
Great shoulders, sides and ham,
With pickled stuff that is delight
To any healthy man.

I've filled the woodshed full of wood
While clearin' out the grove,
And it's all out and split just right
T' slip into the stove

So let old Winter come. He can
No terrors to me bring;
I'll laugh and mock his wrath until He's conquered by the Spring.

And, as I sit and dream, I give
All praise to Him above,
Who's made it such a pleasant task
To Work, and Live, and Love.

—Ernest C. Foster in St. Louis Republic.

Muddiest of Rivers
The Missouri is the muddiest river in the Mississippi Valley; it carries more silt than any other large river in the United States except possibly the Rio Grande and the Colorado.

For every square mile of country drained it carries downstream 381 tons of dissolved and suspended matter each year. In other words, the river gathers annually from the country that it drains more than 123,000,000 tons of silt and soluble matter, some of which it distributes over the flood plains below to form productive agricultural lands but most of which finds its way at last to the Gulf of Mexico.

It is by means of data of this kind that geologists compute the rate at which the lands are being eroded away. It has been shown that Missouri River is lowering the surface of the land drained by it at the rate of one foot in 6,036 years. The surface of the United States as a whole is now being worn down at the rate of one foot in 9,120 years. It has been estimated that if this erosive action of the streams of the United States could have been concentrated on the Isthmus of Panama it would have dug in 73 days the canal which has just been completed, after 10 years' work, with the most powerful appliances yet devised by man.—

Plants That Make a Good Hedge
The most popular shrubs for making hedges at the present time are Japanese barberry and California privet. The barberry will grow almost anywhere and is delightful the year around, its bright red fruit adding a warm note to the winter landscape which is most acceptable. It needs almost no trimming and its prickly spines are not relished by dogs and other intruders. It grows slowly, however, and for many years makes only a low hedge.
Privet is better when a tall hedge is desired, but privet must be kept trimmed all summer if it is to look well.
Doubtless arbor vitae is the best plant for an evergreen hedge, although hemlock spruce is decidedly preferable when the hedge must stand in partial shade. Both make fine, strong screens and barriers, which are quite as effective as fences in excluding unwelcome visitors.

WAS QUITE DIFFERENT

From CHICAGO DAILY NEWS.

"I certainly was amazed at Dora," said the bride that evening to her husband. "I hadn't seen her for ages, you know—and the way she talked! About her relatives-in-law! Why, it was perfectly dreadful! I don't see how any woman could harbor such feelings toward her husband's relations! And she insisted that Arthur was just as vehement when he discussed hers! It seems to me if I did feel that way I'd at least keep still about it!"

"What did she say?" inquired the bride's husband, interestedly.

"Mercy! I couldn't begin to remember!" she told him. "Why, I wouldn't dream of saying such things about your family, Daniel! I am sure they have tried their best to be very nice to me!"

"Why, they think you're great!" insisted her husband in some surprise.

The bride lowered her eyelids. "I'm glad you think so, dear," she murmured. "I'd stand almost anything to preserve peace—but Dora seems actually anxious to alienate Arthur and his mother and sisters! She said the sooner they learned they could not influence him any longer the better it would be! No matter how much your mother interfered you may believe I'd never open my mouth!"

"Why, mother never interferes!"

"I'm glad you think so," she repeated. "I didn't intend to say a word about it, but if you knew how your mother has interfered with my house-keeping! Trying to tell me I know nothing at all about it and that I am extravagant!"

"I'm sure," said her husband, hurriedly, "that mother had the very kindest intentions!"

"I suppose," interrupted the bride in tremulous tones, "I should have known that you would defend your mother in any case! Now, my own mother never dream—"

"Why, Mother Never Interferes!"

"Huh!" said her husband, dryly. "She cut up something rough when we took this flat! Said I didn't earn enough!"

"It was our interests she had at heart!" flamed the bride. "I never thought I'd see the day when you didn't admire my mother! She's so entirely different from yours!"

"I should say she was!" exclaimed the bridegroom with emphasis.

"I don't like your tone of voice!" said the bride, with dignity. "If you begin making comparisons between your people and my people, I can tell you right now that so far as that goes the Bartons were prominent before the Higbees ever were heard of! We can trace back to before the Revolution. And who ever heard of the Higbees? That was just what mother said at the very first. She spoke about your sister's large hands—true aristocracy always shows in the hands! Lily is what you'd call a pretty girl, if you aren't trained to look for the finer marks—and she is your sister, so that I never intend to say a word against her; not even if her common tastes lead her to marry that awfully ordinary man she's so crazy about! How she can ever look at him!—Lily has always been jealous of me and the attention I had, and she nearly died when the Joneses asked me to the exclusive house party and left her out! I could tell you some things she did to try to break up your engagement to me!"

"I don't know that there is anything so aristocratic in going through bankruptcy twice, as your brother did!" interrupted the bridegroom. "And as for family, I should think you'd feel you had too much of it in some respects—consider your Uncle Lyman and his breach of promise suits!"

"Brother Tom simply has been unfortunate!" flared the bride. "It always was the other people's fault! And if you think I'm going to have all those up-country relatives of yours that were at the wedding down to visit us here you are mistaken! And you can tell your mother!"

"Gee!" breathed the bridegroom. "What are you trying to do—give an imitation of your friend Dora, whom you just mentioned?"

"My case," said the bride with extreme dignity, "is very different from Dora's! I have real grounds for my feelings! If she had relatives-in-law like mine she might very well talk!"

A clear conscience makes a soft pillow.

President More Securely Guarded

Since the attack on J. P. Morgan of New York and the explosion at the capitol in Washington the authorities deem it necessary to place a greater protection around the President. Secret service men guard him day and night but in order to protect him from fanatics since the shooting of Morgan, more service men have been detailed to his care and protection. The President is spending his annual vacation at Cornish, N. H., where he could be easily approached if any malicious intent lurked in the mind of any one, and to guard the Chief Executive the secret service force has been instructed to proceed at once to Cornish.
